Introduction

A marathon is more than just a race.

It is a triumph, an achievement and a celebration that showcases the courage, passion and zeal of the citizens of a city. And on a crisp November morning, Delhities did just that. They rose above the clichés and showcased to the world, how barriers are broken and paradigms re-defined.

The Aritel Delhi Half Marathon (ADHM) 2008 will go down in history as the day Delhi awoke to the joy of running. It will be remembered as a day the citizens of Delhi, stood tall. Men and women, young and old, rich and poor came together and ran as equals.

It will also be remembered as a day when the joy of running was equally matched with the joy of giving. It was a platform that saw head honchos from corporate India and ordinary people pledge their time and sweat to raise Rs. 1.62 crores in support of over 35 NGOs. What's more, for the first time ADHM 2008 saw a wheelchair participant become a dream teamer, raising over 1 lakh for charity.

This brochure attempts to record the excellent charity work carried out by non-profit organizations, corporates and individuals. A more detailed analysis will be available at www.concernindia.org

Our sincere thanks to all our partners and participants for making ADHM 2008 truly memorable.

Highest amount of single pledge raised: Rs. 18,000

How did you raise the money?

I sent a series of emails to my existing network. I used consistent set of timed and planned messages.

How long did it take to raise the pledges?

3 weeks.

Why did you opt to run for the chosen NGO?

I ran to support Mobile Creches. I found the work they were doing most in keeping with what I thought had a long-term impact on society.

Now that you have raised money for a cause you believe in, describe your sense of achievement.

I think I have taken the first step. I am very keen to get more deeply involved in helping and working with Mobile Creches; it could be as a volunteer on the ground. But I believe we can add more value by way of the knowledge and network we can leverage for their work.

Your advice on pledge raising based on your experience.

(a) Be fearless, and build a story. It is amazing how many people actually, genuinely thank you for taking money from them. There is a strong latent need to help which you can tap into. (b) Position yourself purely as a bridge, and make the cause the centerpiece (c) Be respectful and not intrusive/irritating. I did not call anyone or SMS anyone for the fundraising. It was all essentially email and word of mouth - subtle but effective media when used well.

Your plans for the next ADHM?

Yes, we plan to run it. My goal for this year was to complete the half marathon in 2 hours (I managed in 2.03 hrs) and to raise Rs. 1.5 lakhs (I raised Rs. 1.73 lacs). I plan to do better on both fronts next year.

Total amount raised: Rs. 6,022

Total number of pledges raised: 76

Highest amount of single pledge raised: Rs. 200

Lowest amount of single pledge raised: Rs. 12

How did you raise the money?

I was advised that raising money for a noble cause could be from any one. It is the willpower of an individual to do something good for the society. I went from house to house to raise the pledges for this great cause. I informed people about this event which was to be held and also about my participation in the event. It was a difficult job but I carried it out with ease.

How long did it take to raise the pledges?

It took almost five days to raise these pledges. Besides reaching out to my colleagues in office, I raised it from my neighborhood.

Now that you have raised money for a cause you believe in, describe your sense of achievement.

I raised money for a noble cause. I felt immense pleasure that I was able to participate in this event. I felt very enthusiastic on the previous day as well as on Race Day. I feel satisfied because I had worked for a good cause and raised funds for those in need.

Your advice on pledge raising based on your experience.

I believe it requires patience. Prior to the event one must spread enough knowledge so that the people who are interested come forward with their contribution. If we look at our Indian scenario, there are only a handful of people who have taken this challenge in their lives to support the under privileged.

We did it!

Total amount raised: Rs. 1,450

Total number of pledges raised: 20

Highest amount of single pledge raised: Rs. 100

Lowest amount of single pledge raised: Rs. 50

NGO Supported: The Vallaya Magic Foundation

How did you raise the money?

I followed the approach of contacting as many people as I could and explaining to them the cause behind my participating in the marathon.

How long did it take to raise the pledges?

It was amazing to see how little time it took for people to donate once they had understood the cause. It did not take me more than a week to raise pledges.

Now that you have raised money for a cause you believe in, describe your sense of achievement.

It feels so satisfying to realize that we were able to raise such a huge amount of funds through our collective efforts.

Your advice on pledge raising based on your experience.

My advice on pledge raising, based on my experience, would be "Don't just raise funds, but raise funds for a Cause". We cannot expect to raise a considerable amount of funds without impressing upon people the reason or the cause for which we are raising pledges. Once the cause is made clear, people will feel connected and donate generously.

We did it!

Total amount raised: Rs. 1,170

Total number of pledges raised: 16

Highest amount of single pledge raised: Rs. 200

Lowest amount of single pledge raised: Rs. 10

NGO Supported: The Vallaya Magic Foundation

How did you raise the money?

I raised money from my colleagues & friends. I explained to them how their smallest contribution will help in the treatment of Thalessemia patients & ensure schooling of children to whom it is only a dream. I also shared some of success stories of Concern India Foundation, which were posted on its website.

How long did it take to raise the pledges?

Due to some personal reasons, I started collecting pledges after the Airtel Delhi Half Marathon & it took me 2 weeks to collect the pledge amount.

Now that you have raised money for a cause you believe in, describe your sense of achievement.

I feel one should always take some time out for our society & contribute towards its betterment. After collecting my pledges, I felt it was too little to fill such a big void. I would like to contribute more - be it for any cause.

Your advice on pledge raising based on your experience.

Always start collecting pledges, when you & the donor both have some free time This will help in explaining your cause & convincing them for higher pledge amount. But one should not force someone to donate 'X' amount. The donor should feel good about giving it.

How did you raise the money?

By calling people and emailing my network.

How long did it take to raise the pledges?

Almost three to four weeks.

Why did you opt to run for the chosen NGO?

I participated to support AADI. This is an NGO working for what I believe in.

Now that you have raised money for a cause you believe in, describe your sense of achievement.

The full credit goes to the donors; I was lucky to be the via media.

Your advice on pledge raising based on your experience.

We need more time to raise funds. Do target individual donors for smaller amounts rather than corporates for large amounts. Individuals are more responsive and not affected by the "economic situation". In the end, those who wish to give, DO GIVE.

Utilization of funds by NGOs

Ref.: Year 2007

A Report from “National Thalessemia Welfare Society”

Thalessemia is a Blood Disorder. It is not curable but preventable by a simple blood test.

Last year also Fluor Daniel was the only company that fielded a Corporate Challenge team for us. We purchased a “Cell Counter Machine” costing Rs. 6 lacs out of the funds they raised for us through the event.

With the help of the machine we were able to do the Thalessemia Screening Test. A number of Thalessemia Screening Camps have been organised in schools, colleges, MNC's, BPO's, banks, management institutes, etc. Till date we have been able to conduct more than 3,000 tests with the help of this machine.

Youngsters from the age group 18 yrs to 30 yrs were benefited through this test; they were educated on Thalessemia and ways and means of preventing it. The purchasing of this machine has helped our organization a lot.

A Report from “Udayan Care”

Amount received through the Year 2007 event: Rs.18,58,271

Out of the above amount –

- Rs. 1.36 lacs were used for food and nutrition of 10 HIV affected children, as well as their exposure visits to museums, parks, etc.
- Rs. 17.22 lacs were used for direct support to the 27 children residing at Greater Noida Home, including shelter, food, education, health, outings, co-curricular activities, program staff, etc.

A Report from “Mobile Creches”

(Period October 2007 to March 2008)

A Report from “Muskaan”
